Susan Kennedy-Arenz, a scholar of German literature, was once a UK-based political researcher, wine writer, and film critic. In 1997 she produced “Landscapes of the Holy Land”, a walking guide to the region, written in the wake of the Oslo Accords. Currently based at the Van Leer Institute, she continues to write (biography, cultural essays), translate and edit. The book “The Legacy of Hansen House” marks her latest historical research.
